ABOUT THIS GUIDE

This Resource Manual is a reference guide to housing resources for people affected by HIV and AIDS in Orange County. An attempt has been made to include key agencies and services. While we would like this to be a complete listing, we realize that information is always changing, and we welcome feedback about the information presented here.

This guide has been prepared by the Director of Housing and Benefits with Housing Opportunities for People with AIDS (HOPWA) funding, administered through the County of Orange Health Care Agency.

Inclusion in this guide does not constitute an endorsement of the agencies or their services by the Director of Housing and Benefits, Radiant Health Centers, or the County of Orange.

Inclusion in this guide does not guarantee sensitive treatment of people with HIV or AIDS. Please use your own discretion when considering disclosure of your own HIV status.

FEEDBACK FORM

We are very interested in your feedback, corrections and updates. Please take a moment to help us make this the best Housing Resource Guide possible. Feel free to copy this page and mail or fax it with any information that might be useful.

HOUSING

When looking for affordable housing, your first call should be to your case manager or client advocate. If necessary, they can refer you to the Director of Housing and Benefits at Radiant Health Centers (RHC).

Please inspect each unit carefully and read the rental agreement carefully before making a deposit or signing a contract. It is the landlord's responsibility to verify each potential renter by utilizing standard practices and policies. RHC and the Director of Housing and Benefits assume no responsibility for decisions made between landlords and tenants.

When considering a housing situation, there should be a written rental agreement. Review the entire agreement and understand what it provides and what your responsibilities are. The time to ask questions is before moving in! Some important questions are:

- How much is the rent and when is it due?
- Are there any late charges if the rent is late?
- Will the landlord make allowances for late Social Security or SSI checks?
- How much notice is required before a tenant moves out?
- What is the policy for refunds when a tenant moves out?
- What are the rules about visitors, smoking, phone use?
- What are the reasons that a resident can be evicted?
- What supplies, if any, are provided?
- How many meals are provided?
- Are there kitchen privileges?
- Are linens provided?
- Is there a laundry area?
- What amount of storage space is available?

The usual resources for housing are sometimes useful when looking for low-income housing. Check out the PennySaver, the Orange County Blade, the Orange County Register, the Orange County edition of the Los Angeles Times, and other local newspapers.

Ride or walk around neighborhoods that you can afford to live in and write down addresses and phone numbers of places you want to know more about in a notebook.

List the phone numbers of all landlords you plan to call, and write down a list of questions to ask them.

- ▶ Practice what you'll say and how you'll say it with a friend before you call.
- ▶ Call all the landlords and ask them the exact same questions. Be sure to take notes on their answers.
- ▶ Plan to seek rental housing from a private landlord if your rental or credit history is negative, or if you have past convictions. Larger apartment companies and management firms often aren't as flexible as small private owners.
- ▶ Try to get appointments to see the rental property. Fill out applications neatly and completely. Try to meet the landlord. Be on time, and call if you might be late.
- ▶ Be direct when you meet a landlord; present yourself as responsible and reliable. Speak confidently and respectfully. Work hard to make a good impression. If possible, arrange to meet your landlord without your children there; it can be less distracting and noisy.
- ▶ Do your best to be clean and neat when you meet potential landlords.
- ▶ Inquire about doing cleaning, painting or repair services to reduce the deposit, or first month's rent (sometimes called "sweat equity").
- ▶ Don't be afraid to ask a lot of questions before you sign a lease or rental agreement.
- ▶ Don't get discouraged!! Finding housing takes time, especially if you have negative rental or credit history.
- ▶ Share your credit and rental history with potential landlords. Don't wait to be asked. It makes a good impression when you are up front and as honest as possible.

If you are using any kind of rental assistance program (RAP, Shelter Plus Care, Section 8, etc.), be sure to notify the appropriate agencies when you have found a landlord who is willing to accept your voucher. Notify them in writing if there are any changes to your income or number of household members. Always express concerns to your landlord in writing, and send copies of these to the appropriate agencies who manage your assistance program.

Fair Housing and Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) require that landlords screen all potential clients equally and fairly. Landlords do not have the right to ask about a person's disability. Consumers can be asked to pay for a credit check depending on the management company's standard practices and policies. Individuals applying for housing should be honest in regard to their credit standing before the credit check is done.

Apartment Search

The For Rent Magazine is generally available in major supermarkets, convenience stores and drug stores. You can also go to aptsforrent.com for listings of available apartments. For a listing of HUD or Section 8 apartments, go to GoSection8.com for local listings of Section 8 rentals.

RENTAL ASSISTANCE

Section 8 Program (Rental Vouchers)

The section 8 rental voucher program is the federal government’s major program for assisting very low-income families, the elderly, and the disabled to rent decent, safe and sanitary housing. Rental units must meet minimum standards of health and safety, as determined by the local housing authority. Participants are free to choose any housing that meets the requirements of the program and are not located in subsidized housing projects.

Section 8 rental vouchers are administered locally by public and Indian housing agencies. The housing agencies receive Federal funds from the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). A rental subsidy is paid directly by the Housing Authority to the landlord on behalf of the participants. The family then pays the difference between the actual rent charged by the landlord and the amount subsidized by the program.

Eligibility is determined based on the total annual gross income and family size. If the housing authority is accepting applications, it will put your name on a waiting list, if the waiting list is open. Once your name is reached on the waiting list, the housing authority will contact you and issue you a rental voucher. During the application process, the housing authority will collect information on family income, assets and family composition.

To apply, contact your local housing authority. For further information, contact the HUD office closest to you.

HOSPICE, SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES AND ASSISTED LIVING FACILITIES

“Hospice” refers to the concept of humane and compassionate care which can be implemented in a variety of settings: in patients’ homes, in hospitals, or in freestanding inpatient facilities. Hospice care usually means controlling symptoms and promoting comfort; it does not focus on aggressive treatment or cure of disease processes. Hospice care seeks to enable patients to carry on an alert, pain-free life and to manage other symptoms so that their days may be spent with dignity and quality at home or in a home-like setting. Hospice services are generally available to persons who can no longer benefit from curative treatment. Services are usually provided by a team of trained professionals—physicians, nurses, counselors, aides, and volunteers—who provide medical care and support services to the patient and often the entire family. Presently, both Medicare and Medi-Cal have a hospice benefit. For more information, contact the National Hospice Organization, or any of the organizations listed below.

In Home Supportive Services (IHSS) 714/825-3000
Ask for IHSS “worker of the day”

IHSS is a state-mandated program administered by counties under the direction of the California State Department of Social Services. The intent of the IHSS program is to provide supportive services to persons who are aged, blind, or disabled, and who are limited in their ability to care for themselves and cannot live at home safely without assistance. This includes persons who would be able to return to their homes from hospitals, nursing homes, or board and care homes if they had help at home. To be eligible for this program, a person must meet all of the following criteria: (1) Must be disabled, blind, or age 65 or older (2) Unable to live safely at home without help (3) Meet financial need requirement. IHSS Social Workers conduct needs assessments with the client in their home to assess the client's medical condition, living arrangement, and what assistance they may be getting from friends, family, or available community services. This needs assessment will determine which services are authorized. Then, it is the client's responsibility to hire and supervise their own care provider.

COMMONLY USED HOUSING TERMS

Affordable Housing

This is generally defined as housing where the occupant is paying no more than 30% of gross income for housing costs, including utilities.

Assisted Living

See “Supportive Housing.”

AHPOCI

Affordable Housing Projects of Orange County Inc., an all-volunteer non-profit organization which sponsors Hagan Place, a 25 unit apartment complex in Laguna Beach for persons disabled by HIV.

Congregate Housing

These are units which contain a living room, bedroom and bathroom, usually with no kitchen area. A central dining area and kitchen is maintained for use of the occupants.

Consolidated Plan

A document written by a State or local government describing the housing needs of the low- and moderate-income residents, outlining strategies to meet the needs and listing all resources available to implement the strategies. This document is required to receive HUD Community Planning and Development funds.

Continuum of Care

Refers to a range of housing resources, beginning with outreach to those in need, to emergency shelters, to transitional housing, to assisted living situations, to permanent independent housing. Also refers to policies designed to address the critical problem of homelessness that include a coordinated community-based process of identifying needs and building a system to address those needs. The approach is based on the understanding that homelessness is not caused merely by a lack of shelter, but involves a variety of underlying, unmet needs—physical, economic, and social.

Emergency Housing

Housing for people with immediate need of shelter, including missions, motels and hotels, and shelters.

Family

Many agencies consider this to be the head of a household and all other persons living in the same household who are related to the head of household by blood, marriage or adoption. Other agencies are more inclusive of same-sex couples in defining this term. See also "Household."

HOPWA

Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS. This HUD-funded program provides participating jurisdictions with the flexibility to create a range of housing programs for people with HIV, to meet local needs. These funds may be used for housing or supportive services related to housing.

Household

Number of persons living in a housing unit. From a financial standpoint, a household is usually seen as individuals who have pooled resources with joint bank accounts, joint property, etc.

HUD

U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Independent Living

Long-term housing where no assistance is provided. Includes apartments, rooms, SROs, congregate settings and mobile homes.

Low Income

Families or households whose incomes do not exceed 80% of the median income for the area as determined by HUD.

Project-Based Rental Assistance

Rental assistance provided for a project, not for a specific tenant. Tenants receiving project-based rental assistance give up the right to that assistance upon moving from the project.

Section 8

HUD's program for assisting very-low income families, elderly and disabled individuals to rent decent, safe and sanitary housing. Rental subsidies are paid by local Housing Authorities to the landlord on behalf of the participating individual or family. The individual or family then pays the difference between the actual rent charged and the amount subsidized by the program. With Section 8 vouchers, rent for units usually may not exceed a maximum amount. With Section 8 vouchers, an individual or family may select a unit which rents above the maximum amount, and will then pay more than 30% of it's income for rent.

Shelter Plus Care (S+C)

A program designed to provide rental housing assistance linked with supportive services such as case management, to people who are homeless and have disabilities, including HIV disease.

Single Room Occupancy (SRO)

Also called SRO hotels, low-income facilities usually for single people only, which offer efficiency apartments with kitchenettes. Many SROs also offer a social services component, with referrals for health and educational opportunities.

Supportive Housing

Housing with a supportive environment such as group homes, Single Room Occupancy (SRO) housing and other housing that includes an on-site planned service component, such as case management, counseling and supervision. Support sometimes includes other services such as child care, transportation and job training.

Tenant Based Rental Assistance (TBRA)

A rental assistance program awarded to a person, not a project or facility, in which the assisted tenant may move from a unit with a right to continue assistance in another qualified unit.

Transitional Housing

Generally housing that is no more than 2 years, but may often be limited to much shorter periods, such as 30 or 60 days, depending on the program.

Very Low Income

Families or individuals whose incomes do not exceed 50% of the median family income for the area as determined by HUD.
