Radiant Health Centers
Same Caring. Same Compassion. New Name.

PARTNERS FOR LIFE
A Legacy Giving Program

GALA 2018
Mardi Gras Masquerade
Dear Friend,

AIDS Services Foundation Orange County is now Radiant Health Centers. I am so proud of our organization and all that we have accomplished with the help of friends like you.

When I joined the organization 24 years ago, as a volunteer, we were helping people die with dignity. Now, we are helping people live long, productive and healthy lives.

We are still fighting to put an end to the HIV epidemic here in Orange County, where we have six new cases per week.

HIV can be successfully treated and even prevented, as long as you have access to the right healthcare. And that is where Radiant Health Centers comes in.

We are still the same caring and compassionate organization offering the same social services. But our more inclusive name, Radiant Health Centers, is an important first step toward providing the expanded services that people at risk of getting HIV need.

For instance, on March 2, we will begin offering behavioral health services to members of our LGBT community who are HIV negative. Our mental health counselors can help with addiction issues, as well as a range of mental health issues and disorders.

I am so proud to share with you that we will continue to look at adding new health services at Radiant Health Centers over the coming years, including expanded housing, nutrition, and PrEP services to those who are at the highest risk for contracting HIV.

We will not stop until we get Orange County to zero new infections and zero stigma.

But we can’t do it alone! Please join us in our fight to end the HIV epidemic.

Sincerely,

Philip Yaeger
Executive Director/CEO
Carolyne learned on the very same day that she was pregnant and HIV positive. That was 24 years ago.

Carolyne’s boyfriend had been an intravenous drug user. She already had a five-year-old son from a previous marriage who was living with his father after a difficult custody battle.

She was extremely relieved when her daughter was born HIV negative.

Today, she is proud of the young woman her daughter has become and thankful for Radiant Health Centers—especially its kids and family programs—for being there for her and her daughter since 2003.

“I just want people to know what I’ve been through, and that I’m still here, despite everything,” explains Carolyne, who is now 56.

When she got her HIV diagnosis in 1993, her relationship ended, some family members were afraid of her and, soon, she was a single mother feeling extremely isolated. She had no symptoms associated with her HIV for the first 10 years but struggled with addiction and mental illness. She once nearly killed herself by overdosing on her medications. It hadn’t been intentional. She was just so angry and lost.

Eventually, she began to get sick and came close to dying from pneumonia.

She did get medical care for her HIV but a physician put her on a regimen that made her feel awful. She’d been prescribed the wrong mix of medications, which can happen when a physician isn’t familiar with best practices in HIV prevention and treatment.

Carolyne’s new doctor told her that it was no wonder she felt awful. She’d been prescribed the wrong mix of medications, which can happen when a physician isn’t familiar with best practices in HIV prevention and treatment.

Carolyne’s new doctor told her that it was no wonder she felt awful. She’d been prescribed the wrong mix of medications, which can happen when a physician isn’t familiar with best practices in HIV prevention and treatment.

Carolyne’s journey has been difficult and lonely. But this year, she finally feels well. She has been six-years sober, continues to attend regular AA meetings and rode 15 miles on her bicycle in the Orange County Ride for AIDS.

She is proud of her progress and committed to staying healthy. She takes two pills a day for her HIV treatment and has an undetectable and untransmittable viral load. The only side effects she reports from her new medications is “feeling well for a change.”

Carolyne first became a client of AIDS Services Foundation Orange County 15 years ago, long before it became Radiant Health Centers, when she first noticed her HIV symptoms. ASF’s case managers helped her get social assistance, housing, food and rides to and from important appointments.

“When you have cancer, people bring you casseroles and offer to drive you to appointments. If you tell them you have HIV, some people don’t want anything to do with you. It’s a socially unacceptable disease,” Carolyne says.

ASF was a place where she and her daughter felt understood and not so alone. She was able to use ASF’s summer camp during her daughter’s school years. Thanks to ASF, her daughter always had holiday gifts.

Through her regular participation in Radiant Health Center’s Positive “U” program, Carolyne has found friends.

At 56 years old, Carolyne has found and overcome so many challenges.

Why did the organization change its name?

Our board and leadership saw that HIV and AIDS had evolved and that, despite our great strides over the decades, six people per week in Orange County continued to test positive for HIV. After consulting many stakeholders including clients, donors, staff and others, we concluded that we needed to evolve too if we were going to change that statistic. Our new name is our first step in that evolution as we begin to bridge the healthcare gaps and barriers that result in six new HIV transmissions each week.

What does the name Radiant Health Centers have to do with stopping the spread of HIV?

To reach our “zero” goals, the more inclusive name is an important first step toward providing the additional health services that people at risk of getting HIV need. For instance, beginning March 2, we will begin offering behavioral health services to members of our LGBT community who are HIV negative. Our mental health counselors can help with addiction issues, as well as a range of mental health issues and disorders. Additionally, we will continue to look at adding new health services over the coming years including expanded housing, nutrition, and PrEP services to those who are at highest risk for contracting HIV. Our expanded focus positions Radiant Health Centers to continually assess the health inequities in the LGBT community that result in new HIV transmissions.

Why was the name Radiant Health Centers chosen?

Apart from the name being more inclusive and reflective of the organization’s expanding services, it was important that our new name be more welcoming. For example, late last year when our landlord inadvertently posted signs above our entrance, some clients told us that they were afraid to enter the building with the word “AIDS” hung over the door. Similarly, we couldn’t use our name on a lot of our mail correspondence. Clients have told us that since we adopted the new name they are more comfortable telling people that they are clients of ours.

What does the name ‘Radiant Health Centers’ mean?

Literally, radiant means ‘emitting light’ which is how we like to see ourselves in relation to those we help — like a lighthouse on the horizon when times are dark and as a hub with health and social services emanating from its center.

Will any of your services or programs for existing clients be changing?

We will deliver the same meaningful programs to our existing HIV-positive community, and our care, compassion and service to them will not waver. We anticipate expanding those successful services to more people in the county in the future. We are as dedicated to our goals of zero new transmissions, zero deaths from AIDS and zero stigma in our community as always. Our evolution to Radiant Health Centers is taking us one big step closer to those goals, and we’re excited with every new step we take!
The outstanding leadership and commitment of our generous supporters are essential to our ability to help individuals living with HIV and AIDS. Major donors contribute $1,200 or more annually through both event and non-event related means. Many contributors give through membership groups such as Patron’s Council, our major donor recognition society. Major donors are vital to the success of the agency and we applaud their unwavering commitment to people living with HIV/AIDS in Orange County.

When Radiant Health Centers (formerly ASF) was first established, many young people were dying of AIDS and the Legacy Giving Program allowed people a wonderful opportunity to leave a donation that would have a positive impact for years to come.

Since the inception of Radiant Health Centers (formerly ASF), Duane Vajgrt and his partner Jeff Benedick have been instrumental in supporting the organization, helping those living with HIV in Orange County. From being active volunteers to major donors that have helped Radiant Health Centers flourish, Vajgrt and Benedick are and remain longtime advocates. For the past 10 years, they have been involved in the Legacy Giving Program—a program created to give supporters a meaningful way to give back within their estate plan.

When the two made the decision to become involved, friend and founding board member, Georgia Garrett-Norris, who passed away most recently in 2017, helped them establish their trust. Throughout the years and during the early stages of the AIDS epidemic, she played an instrumental role in providing legal aid to clients with AIDS, helping them put together their wills. She also made impactful strides to building the Legacy Giving Program. Vajgrt and Benedick are tremendously grateful for her support and encouragement, and it’s one of the many reasons they have made the pledge to be in the program.

“It is an agency with such rich history and to us has demonstrated consistent leadership with a commitment to continually evolve to meet the needs of its clients,” said Duane Vajgrt. “With our involvement in the Legacy Giving Program, we simply want to ensure that it has the ability to expand its services to those that need them and continue for as long as they are needed.”

For anyone involved in philanthropy, Vajgrt and Benedick encourage them to set up a trust or will because it could make a crucial difference and impact for that organization long into the future.

For anyone interested in learning more about the Legacy Giving Program, please contact Chris Bragg, Chief Development Officer, at (949) 809-8760 or cbragg@radianthealthcenters.org or visit our website at: www.radianthealthcenters.org/get-involved/legacy-planning.

From all of us at Radiant Health Centers, we’d like to thank everyone who has made a legacy gift donation and encourage you to consider us in your estate planning.
Radiant Health Centers raised $285,000 at the Annual Gala. All funds will benefit men, women and children living with HIV, as well as prevention outreach.

Radiant Health Centers’ Annual Gala “A Masqued Mardi Gras,” raised $285,000 that will go directly to Radiant Health Centers’ social services programs that help 1,400 men, women and children living with HIV in Orange County, along with prevention outreach.

The event was 100 percent underwritten by sponsors and all the donations from the gala directly benefit Radiant Health Centers’ client programs. The family & children’s program, the food pantry and education and outreach programs are only a few of the many that benefit from the funds donated.

The gala was held on January 27th at Santa Ana’s Yost Theatre and featured dinner, dancing and outstanding entertainment by the “Lady of Song” Toni Malone, along with Michael Shapiro, the Royals and Big Butter Jazz Band.

Malone did not disappoint the crowd, most of whom were wearing Mardi Gras attire, of more than 300 guests and volunteers with her renditions of popular songs such as “Proud Mary” and “Mardi Gras in New Orleans.” Artist Ali Sabet also auctioned off his latest work of art, created at the event.

“Radiant Health Centers’ Annual Gala— “A Masqued Mardi Gras” fête continued a tradition of fundraising started when the organization was known as AIDS Services Foundation Orange County.”

“Thank you for your support!”

“This year’s annual gala was a beautiful and memorable evening,” said Larry Will, event chair and Radiant Health Centers board member. “The incredible generosity of our attendees will help countless people living with HIV and AIDS in Orange County.”
